

Hello friends, and thanks for visiting www.vomitstyle.com. The creators of vomit style are currently in the process of producing a film by the name of El Coyote. It is a Mexican slasher western, set in present day Mexico. You can view the trailer and learn more about our film at www.elcoyotethemovie.com.

We are almost finished but still need to raise more cash to finish up. So for a limited time we are making the following special offer. All the work at vomitstyle.com is for sale and any purchase of $1,000 or more go towards the funding of our film. This means that in addition to the beautiful works of art you buy you could also be an investor in the film. This will entitle you to a return on your investment should the film make money. In other words you get the art plus the potential to get your money back plus a share of the profits.

In addition there is a sliding scale of benefits depending on the amount you contribute. Over $5,000 will get your name on screen with a producer credit. Over $10,000 and you or a loved one can be a dead body in the movie. And $15,000 or more will get you a small speaking part. Most likely you will say a few words before you are killed. We are filming in rural Mexico but can make arrangements if the price is right to get you in the shot.

We need at least $80,000 more in order to finish the shoot and approximately $20-30,000 more for post production costs. Our main focus right now is to finish the shoot, which we hope to do in November of this year. We are counting on you our friends and family to help us reach our goals. Thanks so much for your support.

Lastly I want to explain a little bit about the term profits and how your investment will be returned. First and most important is to understand that many films never make any profit at all, and the investors must take a loss. You however don't have to worry about that since you will already have the art which is a pretty good investment already. However, when the film does start to make money this is what will happen. All bills will be paid, including paying back investors, such as yourself. If the movie continues to make money this will be the profit. Profits will be divided in half with 50% going to the filmmakers (myself and my partner) the other 50 % will be divided among the investors based on the percentage of the total cost that they contribute. So, if the film cost $100 and you gave $10 you would get 10% of the profits. Although we need $80,000 to finish the shoot, the total budget when all is said and done will be around $200,000. You can view our business plan at www.elcoyotethemovie.com for a better understanding of our budget and our plans for the film.
